VIRGINIA FARMS.

The Lexington Gazette says that from the farmers of Rockingham county comes up the cry that it is impossible to secure reliable labor. That condition is not confined to Rockingham. We hear the same complaint from various sections of the State, especially from the counties in the black belt, where there were formerly many negroes. But a large number of negroes are now finding employment in the mines or on the railroads and they prefer this to farm work, because they receive better pay and there is more or less of adventure in mining and railroading.

There has come a great change in this respect during the past several years and the farmers of Virginia must meet the new conditions. They must rely in the main upon themselves and their sons to till the soil, and that means that farm operations must in a measure be curtailed. The average farmer cannot under existing conditions have his "broad acres." He must confine his operations, he must reduce his acreage, he must improve his lands and make one acre produce as much as two acres produced under the old system. If that rule is followed we believe that it will eventually result in a great good to the farming community. There is more profit in cultivating a small, rich acreage than in cultivating a large, poor acreage.

But what is to become of the lands which are not tilled? The best thing to do with them is to sell them to settlers who may be induced to come in from the outside, and we believe that it is now entirely practicable to bring numbers of such settlers into Virginia.

Several days ago we mentioned the fact that a gentleman from South Dakota, who was educated in this State, had purchased lands in Tidewater Virginia, with n view to selling them to persons whom he expected to bring from the West. Since that time we have had a call from another citizen of South Dakota, who is engaged in the same work. He has already brought a number of Western people here and settled them on Virginia farms and he expects to bring many more. Lands in the North and Northwest are now very high in price, bringing $50 to $100 an acre, and many who purchased years ago at a much lower price are selling out, in view of seeking a warmer climate. These settlers are favorably disposed toward Virginia, but almost invariably they ask these two questions:

"Why is land so cheap in Virginia?" "If that is a good country, why have not the people found it out in the last thirty years?"

The land agent says that he has much difficulty in giving satisfactory answers to these questions. Northern and Western people contend that the land cannot be worth much or the prices would not be so low. The answer is simple enough. The land-owners of Virginia are what we call "land poor." They have more land than they can profitably cultivate. This surplus land is lying idle and is a dead loss to the owners, for they must pay taxes, and they receive no profit when it is not cultivated. rented the rent amounts to very little, and the tenant is after getting all that he can out of the land and so will spend as little as possible in the way of permanent improvements. So, under the present system, many farmers would rather let their lands remain idle than to rent them. It is not surprising that surplus lands under these conditions should be so low in price.

But there is another answer. While these poor lands bring low prices, there are farms in this section of the State which could not be bought for $10, $20 or even $50 an acre. They are lands which have been improved, and lands in this section of Virginia are all susceptible to improvement. When they are enriched the fertilizer remains in the soil, for it cannot be washed away. It is quite possible for an industrious farmer to take lands valued at $10 an acre and improve them and in a few years make them worth double and treble that price.

These facts should be well advertised all over the West and Northwest. If so there would soon be a greater demand for Virginia farms.

THE CORPORATION COMMISSION The Times was opposed to that clause in the new Constitution providing for a Corporation Commission, and from time to time we gave our reasons for believ ing that it would be unwise to create such a commission in this State. We still believe that the State would be better off without it than with it; but there is another view, and we always endeavor to see both sides of the question. There are many honest and sincere men in Virginia who believe that corporations are dangerous and that there should be some centralized power of government to control them. These people will at least sion, and their wishes in the matter are not to be ignored. Very few of us put much faith in the lightning-rod, yet if there are members of the family who stand in deadly terror of lightning and who derive comfort during a storm from the presence of a lightning-rod on the house, it cannot be disputed that, so far as they are concerned, the lightning-rod is a good thing. It gives comfort, and comfort is not to feel safer with a Corporation Commis-

mission will be composed of conservative and discreet men, who will, on the one hand, look after the interests of the people and, on the other hand, will protect legitimate corporations in all their legitimate rights.

Even though there be many who are opposed to the Corporation Commission, we do not think that that one feature of the new Constitution is sufficiently objectionable to cause any good citizen of the State to want the whole Constitution to go by default.

LET THE QUESTION BE CAN-VASSED.

The County Democratic Committee Prince William, by a practically unanimous vote, have declared against the submission of the Constitution to the vote of the people and have requested their delegate in the convention to vote for proclamation. During the recess there should be public meetings in all the counties and cities or some other means devised to test public sentiment, so that the delegates may know how to act when they return. If Constitution has been framed and we begood an instrument as could be framed by any Virginia convention. When the people understand it thoroughly we are certain they will like it, and if they like it the simplest way to put it into effect is to proclaim it.

We hope that each and every delegate will now make it a point to explain the nature of the instrument to his constituents and then ask them to advise him as to whether or not he shall vote in fayor of referring it back to them or in favor of proclaiming it to be the organic law of the State.

NORFOLK'S KINDERGARTEN.

The Norfolk Landmark reproduces at extract from the excellent article which Miss Alice M. Parker contributed to The Times on the kindergarten, and adds:

Norfolk "fell into line" before Balti more did, presumptuous as it seemed to some for this city to undertake to ahead of the Maryland metropolis. A result of the philanthropic efforts of the Norfolk Kindergarten Association, which supported a free kindergarten for some time as an object lesson, the Councils of Norfolk now maintain a kindergarten as a part of the public school system of the city. The beginning is modest, to be sure but substantial. Richmond, like Balti more, will have to acknowledge the lead of Norfolk in this respect. We have already had occasion to refer to Norfolk's lead in this great work, and we make our best bow to the noble women of that city who put Norfolk in the lead. There are noble women in Richmond who are working to the same end, and they will succeed by and by,

E. Graff, the Hebrew member of the board, stated that there had never beer any objection on the part of the parent of the Hebrew children to the prayer and that the protest recently made was with-out authority. The Hebrew children are not obliged to repeat the prayer.

We should like to know whether or not any of the children are compelled to repeat the prayer.

The Progressive Farmer of North Caro lina says: The newspapers of the State can do no better work for themselves and their people than by encouraging the estab-lishment of rural school libraries.

That is excellent advice and it is a sign of the times. The cause of popular education is gaining ground.

"Pay your poll tax" is now the cry in North Carolina. That means that those who do not pay cannot vote,

CURRENT TOPICS.

In Different Phases.

The Richmond Times has this: Several days ago a woman in Richmond, being in a hurry, attempted to cross the street ahead of a wagon which cross the street anead of a wagon wines was being driven by a negro. The driver deliberately applied the lash to his team and tried to run the woman down. After the woman had escaped she turned and looked at the negro and he scowled at her in a way that made her flesh creep. Then the next paragraph after the above reads thus:

On Thursday afternoon a horse dashed down Fifth Street dragging a buggy in which were seated a woman and child. Wesley Armstrong, a negro man, saw the danger, and at the risk of his own life stopped the frightened horse and saved the woman and child from harm. Last Tuesday night the house of Dr. W. W. Griggs, of Elizabeth City, was gutted by fire, and this paragraph oc-curs in the Tar Heel's report of the occurrence: During the early part of the fire a ne gro youth on the burning roof was cut off from escape. Enveloped in flaming embers, flame and smoke, he laughed at the entreating mob below and waited cool 'til a ladder was run up just in time to

'til a ladder was run up just in time to save him from a horrible death by suffocation or fire.

The Richmond Times, after getting its two paragraphs, quoted above, in juxtaposition, adds this:

It is not always fair to judge negroes as a race. There are mean negroes and good negroes, as there are mean white folks and good white folks.

It is true. We ought not to be too uncharitable in our judgment of the brother in black nor condemn the whole race for its worst specimens. There are centuries its worst specimens. There are centuries of barbarism behind it and it has been exposed to the influences of civilization only a little more than an hundred years.—

Polling the Convention.

Charlotte Observer.

The Richmond Times of yesterday pub-Inseed a poll of the convention on the question of proclamation or submission of the new Constitution, with the result that thirty-seven members expressed themselves in favor of submitting the matter to the present electorate, twenty-three favored proclamation, thirteen declared in favor of submission to an clived in favor of submission to an abridged electorate and twelve were not recorded, several of the latter declining to talk for publication. Were the Public Ledger to have its preference in the matter, the question of adoption would he submitted to the electorate that will be qualified under it, but we should not be surprised to see the new instrument proclaimed, as public sentiment in the State appears to be crystalizing in that direct The Constitution that has been ti gives comfort, and comfort is not to be scorned.

The people of Virginia are conservative, and there is every reason to believe that the Virginia Corporation Complete that the Virginia are constitution that has been defined with so much care and labor is an up-to-date instrument and deserves the support of every man who desires to see the Commonwealth start that the virginia are conservative th

Trigg Company Pays Funeral Expenses of the Young Man.

All that was mortal of Fritz Zeller who was drowned in the river, was laid to rest yesterday afternoon in Maury Cemetery. The funeral was from the Cemetery. The funeral was from the grave. There was a large crowd of sor-rowing friends to witness the last sad rites.

The young man was an orphan and came the Young Halt was all of part and can't here from Ealtimore. He secured work at the Trigg shipyards, and his fellow employes defrayed the expenses of his burial. They also paid a reward of $10 for the finding of the body.

It will be remembered that the young was drowned on the morning 18th, while engaged in rowing a boat near the Cedar Works. At this time he was with a friend, and when left alone attempted to make the trip across the river. The swift current capsized the boat and he was seen to sink under a barge cut in the stream. It was not until Mcnday that the body was found.

FULTON GIRL TO WED.

Miss Ball Will Become the Bride of Mr. Joseph Daniel This Evening.

At Fulton Baptist Church to-night at o'clock Miss Mary Carter Ball will become the bride of Mr. Joseph W. Daniel, of Newport News. The Rev. W. S. Leake, pastor of the church, will perform the ceremony and Mr. Richard Dowden will preside at the organ.

Miss Ball is the second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henley F. Ball and is one of Fulton's most attractive daughters. Mr. Daniel is a son of Dr. and Mrs. W. J. Daniel, of Prince George county, and holds a responsible position with the Newport News Ship-Building Company. The bride will be attired in white organdy over white silk and will carry Bride's roses. The ushers will be Messrs. John Duke, best man; Coursen Parrish, Urial Summons and Harvey Flournoy. After the wedding a reception will be tendered the bridal party and friends at the residence of the bride's parents, on Graham Street.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel will leave to-morrow afternoon for Newport News, their future home. They will reside at No. 2708 Orcutt Avenue.

BROOK-AVENUE FRANCHISE.

Contentions of Rival Companies Before the Street Committee.

The meeting of the Street Committee or the 15th instant will be the occasion of the opening skirmish between the two local street railway companies over the Brook-Avenue franchise, for which both companies are now petitioning.

The Traction Company will argue that I asked for this route years ago, before its rival thought of it, and also that it now proposes that the franchise, made nt in blank, be put up to the highest

The Passenger and Power Company will argue that its ownership of the Brook turn pike makes it rather to the city's interests to give to it the franchise, and that the provision of the Traction Com pary's position that "the city shall not he cafter grant to any other street car company the privilege to operate its cars upon the tracks to be constructed thereuider for a greater distance than three pary's previous position in this matter and also in violation of the Passenger and Power franchise, as it would, they argue, invalidate the present scheme for the joint use of tracks all over the city. They base this contention on subsec tion eleven of section two, of the Pas-senger and Power franchise

"The statement made by the officials of the Passenger and Power Company that the present franchise of the two com-panies would be invalid if this new franchise prohibited the use of tracks on Brook Avenue by the company not hold-ing the franchise is, on the face of it, absurd, as it is a matter of a new fran-chise in which the Council has the right to make any conditions in it that it may deem proper and fit."

The Traction Company's representative will also argue that the Citiezns' Rapid Transit Company was given a franchise in which other companies were kept off of its tracks.

Mr. E. Randolph Williams, of the Trac tion Company, yesterday afternoon stated that he did not regard the matter as of general public interest, and as purely legal, rather than to be left to the arhitrament of public opinion.

Special Services at Immanuel The meeting at Immanuel Baptist Church has opened most auspiciously, despite the unfavorable weather. Mr. Gar-land, whose labors at Pine-Street and Ful-ton have been so greatly blessed, had large congregations to hear him both last night and Monday night. His sermons have created a profound impression. The discourse to-night will be especially for men, though ladies will be welcomed. Great interest is being minifested in the meeting.

Miss Cobb a Pretty Bride.

There was a quiet wedding solemnized at the residence of Rev. J. T. Tucker Sunday evening, March 30, 1902, at 7 o'clock, when Miss Mary T. Cobb beo'clock, when Miss Mary I. Cool Secame the bride of Mr. M. F. Kennedy. The bride was dressed in a suit of gray trimmed in white, with hat and gloves to match, and carried a bouquet of bride's roses.

The couple returned to the bride's mother's, at No. 2715 O Street. Many of their friends met them there, wishing them a happy life.

Mount Vernon Report.

The report of the Virginia Board of Visitors to Mount Vernon for 1901, pre-pared by Judge James B. Sener, on be-half of so able a board as Dr. J. L. M. Curry, Hon. B. B. Munford, Captain John A. Coke and Mr. R. L. Gardner, and by them fully approved, as well as by ex-Governor Tyler in his message to the Legislature last December, has been highly received, more and higher commended as an executive document. The Legisla-ture honored it by providing for the printing of one thousand additional copies, and the press of Baltimore, Philadel-phia, New York, Boston, Jacksonville, Fla., outside of the State, and very many Mrs. George W. Bagby presided over the regular monthly meeting yesterday of the Rosemary Public Library, which was held at No. 5 South Third Street. Much routine business was transacted and many new books were under discussion. Among those present were Mesdames Shepherd, Savage, Aylett, Chiles, Ferrall Robertson, Arthur Lefroy, Heary Williams, B. B. Valentine, Halyburton, Miss Margaret Lee and Miss Gibson.

Among those who will attend to a strength of the State, and very many of our Virginia exchanges have spoken of it with praise. Among other public men, besides many in our own State, who regard it with favor, are Senator Hoar, of Massachusetts, and that great authority on books, Hon. A. R. Spofford, of the Congressional Library at Washington, who says that "the country of George Washington owes Judge Sener a debt of gratitude" for this report. The Times published a review of this report in its February 15. authority on books, Hon. A. R. Spofford, of the Congressional Library at Washington, who says that "the country of George Washington owes Judge Sener a debt of gratitude" for this report. The Times published a review of this report in its February 16, 1962, issue, from the pen of Judge R. T. W. Duke, who is chairman of the Executive Committee of the General Society of Alumni of the University of Virginia. The care and interest with which the report has been prepared entitle it to the praise it has received.

Lost in London. Professor Maurice gave his entertaining lecture, "Lost in London," at the Broad-Street Methodist Church last night. The lecture was illustrated with a number of scenes from London life displayed by stereopticon.

A FLAT ERROR.

Grove Avenue.

Mrs. Harvey Taylor has returned from a delightful trip to Mexico.

Misses Emily and Lillie Stearns are visiting their cousin, Mrs. William Bowman, of Lynchburg, Va.

Mrs. Charles Rixey, of Culpeper, who has been visiting her mother, Mrs. Franklin Stearns, has returned to her home.

Miss Louise Werner celebrated her twenty-first birthday last night by entertaining in a delightful manner at her and the statement of the statement concerning Bahen, which is seemphatically denied. The statement attributed to Bahen and by him denied, was made by Mr. Mosby, of Marshall Ward, and is therefore honestly repudlated by Bahen. Mr. Bahen did say in my presence, that Langbourne M. Williams visited him and told him that "he must fall into line" or be beaten. The card to which I reply opens with the words: "I am told"; and right there, as Tennyson says, "Somebody blundered."
